

Joanna Kalowski is a mediator, facilitator and judicial educator. She is a member of the advanced panel of The Resolution Institute Australasia, the Singapore Mediation Centre's international panel and is accredited by CEDR (UK) and the Centre de Mediation et d'Arbitrage de Paris.

A past member of the Administrative Appeals Tribunal and National Native Title Tribunal, Joanna has been a member of the Standards Commission of IMI, and co-chaired its intercultural standards sub-committee.

Joanna has given masterclasses and workshops on mediation and cross-cultural aspects of dispute resolution in Europe and across Australia, and with MATA (UK), has run annual retreats for advanced mediators in Italy.

Jo has a particular interest in communication in cross-cultural and legal setting, and has led workshops designed to lower tension and facilitate understanding in Australian and New Zealand courts, and observed courtroom communication in Australia and Germany.

Joanna has held many directorships: the Public Interest Advocacy Centre, the National Population Council, the Indigenous Law Centre of New South Wales University, Sydney Dance Company and the Ethics Review Committee of Macquarie University. She is a past Chairman of Foodbank Australia and LEADR Australia.
